Dear madam/sir,

Juan worked with us in a freelance capacity from August 2013 until the end of March 2014.

Brilliant developer. Writes good, maintainable code that does exactly what it says on the tin. Learns new technology quickly and well. (We are still using his first AngularJS project as a template to train our internal developers.)

Responsible and able to think independently: given a general goal, Juan will execute well and deliver on time without needing constant supervision.

More importantly, as a team member Juan makes those around him better. When paired with less experienced developers, the other developers' code quality and general engagement level both increased measurably.

Hire Juan if you want to supercharge your project, or more generally if you value dedication and quality craftsmanship.

Yours sincerely,

John Walker (IT Director)
